Module: COM2028 Introduction to AI

During the period of the online, open-book examination, you may access material online without restriction. This includes content on SurreyLearn, or elsewhere via the internet.

Plagiarism and Collusion

You MUST complete the exam on your own and all the work submitted must be your own. Here are some useful things to remember:

1. DO NOT allow anyone else to complete the exam on your behalf. If you do, you will be in breach of university regulations and could be expelled from the university.
2. DO NOT allow anyone else to help you with your exam. If you receive help from another person with any of your exams you will be in breach of university regulations and will face disciplinary actions. The person helping you with the exam will also face disciplinary actions for collusion.
3. DO NOT communicate with any other person on any aspect of the examination by any means (including image capture, email, social media, phone, etc.) during the examination period.
4. DO NOT post questions, or question parts, on any online forum.
5. DO NOT copy and paste text from other sources into your exam answers. This is plagiarism and will be classed as cheating.
6. DO NOT discuss the content of the paper with anyone else until the window to take the exam has passed.
